

HIST 152
WOMEN IN TWENTIETH-CENTURY
AMERICA

3 Units
54 hours lecture; 54 hours total

Recommended Preparation: ENGL 90

A survey of the experiences, perspectives, and contributions of women in the political, social, economic, and cultural development of the U.S. during the twentieth century. This course will include study of diverse groups of women, including Native Americans, African Americans, Latinas, and Asian Americans.

CSU, UC

Student Learning Outcomes:

- A. Critically analyze primary source evidence in the context of broader historical themes and developments.
- B. Argue a historical thesis that explains the development of social, political, economic and/or cultural patterns in history, and use primary and/or secondary sources to support that thesis.